Mr Mongan's despatch on the Chaitang Coal mines sets forth that "popular feeling" is against the construction of a road, and urges that as one of the three reasons which combine to upset the hopes of Mr Henderson the The Supreme Court in Criminal Session July 2, Cyclone, Amer. ship, 836, King, projector. If, for instance, any particular law was unpopular amongst the tailors or carpenters of a town or a county, it would be a decided misuse of words to term their opposition "popular opinion." It could only be so characterized if other trades and other classes of the community above and below endorsed their complaints and supported their remonstrances. Yet here three months' imprisonment, in addition to in China, where "popular opinion" bears paying $7 as amends to the Sikh cona yet more restricted signification, the phrase is used to imply the opposition of a few peasants, (we speak with a personal knowledge of the locality) to the sonal knowledge of the locality) to the Cror China, City of Quebec, Br., 663 tons, favourable views towards the proposition a cargo of cotton, for Hongkong, at Rs 6.10 entertained by the coal-mine owners, per bale. I have the honor to be, Sir, Your obedient servant,

His Majesty the King ordains that the actual Governor of Macan, José Maria da Ponte e Horta, be informed through the Secretary of State for the Marine and the Colonies, that, taking into consideration what he stated in his separate despatch of the 23rd March last, His Majesty has been pleased to accept the resignation tendered by him, and that his successor will leave shortly. The Governor, however, is to continue in the exercise of his actual functions until the arrival of his successor.

INTELLECTUAL REPUTATION

(Pall Mall Gazette.)

"I remain yours very sincerely, "T. O. S. SPEEDY."

Persons who have trained themselves to habits of nice discrimination in the use epithets that mark character often bave their ears vexed by the looseness and confusion of common speech. One hears people in sight of a landscape, or in a great cathedral, or before a famous picture, use such terms as beautiful, handsome, fine, splendid, pretty, noble, and so forth. promiseuous manner that is very painful to anybody who knows that these words are 47 no more synonyms than red and blue are identical colours. It is just as vexatious 40 to observe the same kind of confusion in criticising intellectual and moral quality. 37 Dover, able, gifted, distinguished, and al 35 the other phrases which are meant to define 30 some sort of intellectual superiority or of leminence, are thrown miscellaneously hither and thither, as if the kind of power implied in them all were one and the same. One very obvious inconvenience of this looseness of usage is that a critic can never be certain of his words being understood in the sense which he wishes them to be understood. It is really a serious drawback not to be able to praise a man for eleverness without the risk of ninety-nine persons out of a hundred believing that you thus intend to place him on the same high level as the man whom you credit with ability or with per picul (inside the bar) could now be distinction. This inconvenience impairs what would otherwise be the excellent fun of hearing, as we often may, some nonder, ous Devasdust, the author of voluminous patriotic commentaries, enlogized by ladios of his acquaintance as wonderfully clever the writer of burlesques extelled as gifted or distinguished; and the smartly humouristic person or an author of graceful verse as extremely able. But there is another point about this which is worse than a mere inconvenience. That the various opithets for intellectual eminence of any kind shorld he used in lax and confused fashion is the certain sign of a corresponding defect in the popular analysis and estimate of differtheir adjectives without nice indement

People bestow because they possess little discrimination of the manifold diversities in capacity and grasp and fineness that exist among men and that are variously demanded for the many sorts of work that men liave to do Clamby and unintelligent distribution of qualifying epithets is the natural symptom of a defective appreciation of the quilities which they really denote. We acquire a habit of talking of eleveruess, ability, distinction, as synonyms, because we have: habit of assuming that all intellectual fibre is of much the same quality, provided only it be at all above the ordinary quality This mistaken way of looking at capacity necessarily infects the objects of it, and a blundering style of panegyric aids and abets the delusions of self-love in persuading a mun that he is of much loftier rank than he has any real protensions to claim. JACK ASHORE " A crab may sometimes be seen crawling along at a snail's pace beneath a crushing load of acorn-shells, sea-weed, and animaloules. A paid off sailor, staggering along Ratcliff Highway, has often reminded me of such a crab. Most probably, he has one or more of his parasites visibly hanging ou bim, but, seen or unseen, he too often carries on his back touter, lodging-house keeper, crimp, courtesan, slop-seller, spiritseller, and a swarm of minor incumbi, who will prey upon him until they have sucked his nouch or waist-belt dry of its last penmy. Sitting at a very modest meal, in a very plainly-furnished room, the landsman can count by the dozen things that have been brought across the sea for his accommodation. It seems hard that the men who bring them should never get a taste of domestic comfact; that when they have bidden a brief good-bye to the hard, dark, a oppy forecastle bunk, perfumed with wet clothes, greasy boots, stale soupereck, and bilge water, they should be dragged off to almost viler dena, much as the sheep, cattle, and pigs, landing at the same time, are driven to the slaughter-house. Such however, is still the fate of the majority of sailors : the normal 'Jack' finds no home until he goes over the side, canvas-bound. for his last long home at the bottom of the sea. In spite of acts of parliament, the ship, as she comes into dock, is boarded by a cockroach swarm of 'runners,' who pounce upon the sailors as if they were consigned to them; quarrel over them, in the graphic words of one who has been thus quarrelled over, like 'dogs let into a rat-hole,' The crimps proffer Jack money for his first night ashore, tempt him with the grogbottles they pull out of their greasy pockets, and hurry him through the gateway, to be sold at so much a head to the low lodging The Duke, as all the world knows, was the letter; to be skinned, under preteuce of being clad, by the low slopseller; or to be squeezed like a lemon by the low publican and his hideous male and female Comuscrew, who get the last drop out of the rind

A complaint was made to a magistrate that a blow had been given in the course of an altereation, but the witness who was relied on to prove the assault could only say that he heard the blow given, as he was at the time in a certain inn near which the occurrence had taken place, The defendant, who denied giving the blow. urged that it was impossible, even if it had been given, that the witness could have heard it from where he was. The magistrate resolved to try the point he actual experiment, and proceeded to the iun, while an officer of the court accomwhere the quarrel had occurred, and there and then gave him a good sound whack. Das Verhältniss der Höhe der Flagge zur Länge ist wie zwei zu drei. The science of Medicine has never before produced any remedy that can be compared to this wonderful Ointment, as it cures after all other means have failed, all wounds, sores, ulcers, and also the most inveterate skin diseases peculiar to the climates of India and Chiua.
